The correct NSPPR type should be based on Form Follows Function. The more correct type will be dictated by the discipline in which it is in engaged or exhibited, such as performance halter classes, light or heavy harness, hunter/jumper, competitive driving, or as a mount for riding disciplines.

Excessive knee or hock action is at no time desirable. Quick, short strides should be penalized.

4.5 Manners

Good manners are demonstrated by the pony's obedience to all commands and includes the ability to stand quietly, back readily, walk, jog/trot, lope/canter or halt as requested and, in general, guided by a light mouth.
